

Claim 44 (new): A rider recreational product for skimming on water and flying through air, comprising first parts constituting the wings of the product and engaging the water during skimming on water.

Claim 45 (new): A rider recreational product for skimming on water and flying through air according to claim 44, and a second part constituting the fuselage or tail section of the product and engaging the water during skimming on water.

Claim 46 (new); A rider recreational product for skimming on water and flying through air according to claim 44, wherein the first parts constituting the wings of the product and engaging the water during skimming on water have control elements on their upper surfaces for engagement by the rider.

Claim 47 (new); A rider recreational product for skimming on water and flying through air according to claim 45, wherein the second part constituting the fuselage or tail section of the product and that engages the water during skimming on water has control elements on its upper surface for engagement by the rider.

Claim 48 (new); A rider recreational product for skimming on water and flying through air according to claim 44, wherein the first parts constituting the wings of the product and engaging the water during skimming on water have longitudinally extending fins on their undersides for facilitating control of the product when in motion.

Claim 49 (new); A rider recreational product for skimming on water and flying through air according to claim 45, wherein the second part constituting the fuselage or tail section of the product and that engages the water during skimming on water has longitudinally extending fins on its upperside for facilitating control of the product when in motion.

Claim 50 (new); A rider recreational product for skimming on water and flying through air according to claim 48, wherein the second part constituting the fuselage or tail section of the product and that engages the water during skimming on water has longitudinally extending fins on its underside for facilitating control of the product when in motion.

Claim 51 (new); A rider recreational product for skimming on water and flying through air according to claim 50, wherein both the first parts constituting the wings of the product and engaging the water during skimming on water and the second part constituting the fuselage or tail section of the product the wing of the product and engaging the water during skimming on water have control elements on their upper surfaces for engagement by the rider in prone, sitting, kneeling and standing positions.